Societal Impacts of NLP: How and When to Integrate Them into Your Research (and How to Make Time for That)

Dr. Emily M. Bender is a professor of linguistics at the University of Washington where she is the faculty director of the professional MS program in computational linguistics. Her research interests include the interaction of linguistics and NLP and the societal impact of language technology and how transparent documentation can help mitigate the effects of bias and the potential for trained systems to perpetuate systems of oppression. She is also actively working on how to best incorporate training on ethics and societal impact into NLP curricula.
